

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARDS 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Organised by

Supported by

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – Third Prize

ASTRO MOHAN press-photographer, an accredited photojournalist, a magician, an astrologer, a palmist, an orator, an artiste and an art critic has his deep academic interest in Astrology which earned him a prefix "ASTRO" to his name. He has documented the cleaning workers for 15 years in Udupi and earned national and international recognition.

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – Second Prize

Started photography in 2006, with the guidance of Mr. S Paul, the legendary Indian photographer Mr. Sudhanshu Malhotra worked with India Today Newspaper section and with TRAFFIC Life Magazine. He is now freelancing with Civil Society and Time Out. Additionally he undertakes documentation work with various developmental organization working on AIDS.

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – First Prize

A.M. SHUDHAKAR has been working for past 20 years in the field of Journalism as a reporter as well as a photographer. He was earlier associated with Tamil weekly magazine titled "TAMILAN EXPRESS" and Tamil daily titled "KALAI KATHIR" and currently is working with "Dinakaran Tamil Daily". He has documented many issues concerning people for his magazine and for many social and developmental organizations in Tamil Nadu.

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – Consolation Prize

Mr. Sourav Karmakar, young freelance photographer from Kolkata with the Post Graduate Diploma in Sports & Mass Communication Management. Mr. Sourav has won 1st Award from Better Photography (River & Sea Contest) 2006 and 3rd Award from Getty Images, World Photography Day Contest, 2007.

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – Consolation Prize

A Freelancer photographer using photography to raise awareness on social issues in newspaper Mr. Dinesh Chandra started photography as a hobby. Won third prize in Photo-contest on Nature organized by Kodak & I-Next (A group of Dainik Jagaran, Lucknow – Hindi daily) and numerous awards for his photography in India.

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – Consolation Prize

Mr. M. Kannan working as a Photojournalist in Kungumam, a popular Tamil News magazine has finished M.A. Communication. Kannan is actively working with EAST COAST, N.G.O in Tuticorin on pollution in the Gulf of Mannar and coastal villages of Tuticorin. He has worked extensively on the life of scavengers and had exhibited the same in 2003 under the tile of "Life style of scavengers" in Dalit kalai vizha Tirunelveli.

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – Consolation Prize

Mr. Ojing Tayeng, a photographer working with The Arunachal Times, leading news paper in Arunachal Pradesh, has finished Bachelor of Journalism and is interested to document the people who are voiceless by giving them voice through his photography.

CLEAN INDIA PHOTO AWARD 2008

India's First Sanitation Award for Photojournalists

Award – Consolation Prize

Mr. Supriya Biswas, a young photographer from Kolkotta has done diploma in photography and works as freelancer with many state newspapers and magazines. He has won numerous awards nationally and internationally.